POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 5.—Fighting as they never fought before, the New York Giants began with the Boston Nationals to-day the series of three games that will decide the National League championship. The loss of a single game would give the pennant to Chicago.

If there was any one in this vast city that did not know a crucial baseball series was on the tapis, he did not show himself. "Any old way to get to the Polo Grounds," was the cry from early morning. The funerals of grandmothers broke all records, and as a consequence there were no office boys in any of the downtown offices. They were all hurrying to the ball game.

Out by Daylight for the Game.

The police spots on Coogan's bluff overlooking the grandstand were taken by daylight. The crowds began to storm the park gates hours before the ticket-sellers were ready to exchange bits of pasteboards for money. The elevated trains were packed, and the street cars were loaded to the gunnels.

The worst of it (or perhaps it was the best of it) all was that if New York won this afternoon the agony would continue unbroken, and if they won again to-morrow the frenzy on Wednesday would be simply heart-breaking.

Then to top the whole thing off, even if the Giants won three straight from the Invers, they could only tie the Chicago Cubs for first place. A post-season series would have to be played to decide the winner of the National League pennant.

Giants Have Heavy Task.

It seemed an almost impossible task that was set for McGraw's men, but they have demonstrated their gameness, and all New York believes they can turn the trick.

Last week's strain on the home players was so intense that they bent and broke under it, but under the inspiration of having a fighting chance to smother their Western rivals they were out to-day just as game and plucky as ever.

The Sunday's rest was much needed and helpful for the cripples Doolin and Bresnahan showed up much stronger on their demon's pedals than on Saturday in Philadelphia.

On Saturday night, too, the Giants were about the most forlorn and disgruntled looking individuals you could run across, but this afternoon they were as spirited and full of ginger as if the old "rag" that has caused all this trouble was already tucked away in their clubhouse.

It is a sure thing that the Giants will not let Boston, a team of chicken-hearted mess, for there is no such thing as a yellow streak in their composition. The Giants have always been at their best when they have had a fight on, and this is surely the time when they have to battle.

The Bostons were ready for the Giants on the last visit they made to Boston and the Brooklyns did not find the Hub's new Invers very difficult propositions last week. The series will all depend on whether the Giants' pitchers can hold their opponents down to reasonably few runs.

Just before the game the Evening Journal loving cup that Frank Bowerman won as the most popular visiting player, was presented to the ex-Giant backstop by Joe Humphries and was as much of a feature as the presentation of a similar cup to Mike Donlin a short while ago. Bowerman was a very much pop, as he had a right to be.

The meeting was called to consider the protests of the New York and Chicago clubs over President Pulliam's decision that the game was a tie.

Each club claims it, and the directors will hear all the evidence and either uphold the president or award it to one of the clubs, in which case it would have a most important part in deciding the pennant.

130,000 BULGARIANS TO SEIZE ADRIANOPLE

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Dispatches from Sofia say that Bulgaria, which to-day declared its independence of Turkey, is momentarily awaiting a declaration of war from the Porte.

The program is then to throw a force of 130,000 Bulgarian soldiers against the city of Adrianople, the first point to be seized.

Already the Bulgarian army is mobilizing near Adrianople, which is in Eastern Turkey, 137 miles north of Constantinople. With Adrianople taken, the next step will be to march upon the capital.

Constantinople advices late to-day say that Turkey will meet Bulgaria's declaration of independence with an armed force.

As soon as official news was received that Bulgaria had thrown over Turkish control, the cabinet assembled, and is still in session.

A minority of the members are understood to have counselled a peaceful acceptance of the situation; a majority, however, favor immediate resistance.

Powers Plan Mediation.

Unofficial announcement was made today at the foreign office in Paris, that France, England and Russia, members of the new triple alliance, are in agreement on an immediate proposal for mediation between Turkey and Bulgaria. The Bulgarian minister of foreign affairs will be called into the Paris conference to-morrow.

The Turkish representative will be present, and it is hoped to bring about an amicable adjustment.

Politically the map of Europe would suffer upheaval from the unrestrained acting of Bulgaria. It would open the way for other Eastern countries in Europe to declare freedom and throw off any restraining alliances.

The foreign office here to-day completed with the foreign office of the French government a note to be forwarded as a protest against the acquisition of Bosnia and Herzegovina by the Austrian-Hungarian empire. It is an undisguised fact that the English government fears a breaking of continental treaties and a resultant chaotic condition throughout all Europe if this program is carried through.

Rushing Military Plans.

The proclamation of Bulgaria as an independent kingdom was formally made at the ancient Bulgarian capital at Tirnova.

Prince Ferdinand and the Cabinet are reported to have acted in complete harmony in the declaration. The Cabinet promulgated the declaration, and Prince Ferdinand, who made a hurried return to Rustchuk Saturday night from his European trip, immediately signed the document. The text of the declaration has been telegraphed to all the European Chancelleries, but it is being withheld from the public, pending the receipt of replies from the various governments. The delay is being utilized in rushing the completion of Bulgaria's military plans.

The news of Bulgaria's action caused a bad slump in the London Stock Market, and the bourses of the Continent.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, Chicago, Oct. 5.—While the Cleveland Naps were playing a double-header at St. Louis to-day, the White Sox made a desperate effort to take another game from the Detroit Tigers. Neither the Sox nor the Tigers could afford to lose, and the game in a body.

was for blood if ever there was one.

Big Ed Walsh got out on the side lines and warmed up, and seeing this Manager Jennings sent Wild Bill Donovan out to hinder us also. The way the Chicagos smeared three runs over the pan yesterday was evidence that they were not to be trifled with.

There was an enormous crowd out to see the little. Monday is usually an off day in baseball, but not so to-day. It seemed as though every mother's son who saw yesterday's game was out again this afternoon.

The weather was clear and cool, and the enthusiasm was manifested long before the teams got busy on the diamond. The White Sox Rooters' Club made things lively from the moment the members arrived

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Oct. 5.—The Red Sox returned to town to play out their schedule, the New Yorks being the opponents to-day and to-morrow and the Athletics on Wednesday. In case the race of ruin on Wednesday the two teams will finish up on Thursday.

The last of the week the Athletics and Red Sox will play in four Connecticut cities for a hospital fund, the last game being on Sunday at Waterbury.

Manager Lake had Morgan ready to tackle the New Yorkers this afternoon. The fallenipers have been going so well lately that it was no sure thing for the Red Sox. The air was chilly, and as there was nothing at stake the attraction drew only a small crowd.

There was a great deal of interest manifested in the score board, where the Giants and Bores game was posted as fast as the innings were received. The crowd roared for the Bostons to put the Giants out of

JURY IN ARSON CASE DISAGREES

After twenty-two hours of deliberation, the jury in the case of Pasquale Amenta and Pietro Roma, charged with firing the building at No. 203 Cambridge street on the night of July 5, reported a disagreement to-day in the Superior Court. The fire resulted in the death of four persons. The jury was discharged, and a new trial will probably be ordered.

DISPUTED GAME WILL BE DECIDED TO-DAY

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.—The Board of Directors of the National League will consider the disputed game between the Giants and Cubs of September 23 this afternoon.

Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburg and Charles Murphy of Chicago have been barred from participation in the meeting, which has been adjourned until 2:30 p. m. to await the arrival of President Brush of New York.

TRADESMEN ASK TAX ON PUBLIC FRANCHISES

The Massachusetts Legislature of 1909 will be asked by the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Boston Merchants' Association, and the Boston Finance Commission to give the city of Boston authority to impose a tax for public franchises.

This decision was reached to-day at a conference of representatives of these bodies with Mayor Hibbard at City Hall.

It marks the beginning of a campaign by Boston merchants to secure for the granting of valuable franchises to public service corporations for nothing.

The men in conference with Mayor Hibbard to-day were Bernard J. Rothwell, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; E. P. Shaw of the Filene company; C. Wheeler, secretary of the Boston Merchants' Association, and Edwin O. Fredon of the R. H. White Company.

As Mayor Hibbard's suggestion the business men decided that they will send as a committee of petitioners to next year's Legislature Mr. Rothwell, representing the Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Merchants' Association and a member of the Finance Commission.

The action of the business associations is a direct result of the refusal of the Board of Aldermen to take action on Mayor Hibbard's veto of the order granting a free and perpetual franchise to the Union Freight Railway to run its trains across the new Northern avenue bridge.

Seven members of the board have openly avowed that they will keep the matter "buried" in the secret Committee on Public Improvements until after the municipal election in December, when they hope to control upon a new board three votes necessary to give the Union Freight Railway what it wants. The Union Freight is a subsidiary company of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

Believing that the New Haven's little brother should not have a monopoly on the business at the Commonwealth docks, reached via the new Northern avenue structure, the Mayor, through Alderman Fred J. Braud, will ask the Board of Aldermen to allow the Boston Elevated Railway Company to run tracks from Broadway, South Boston, via either C street or D street, to the docks.

HUB MAN KILLED ON RAIL.

FRANKLIN, Oct. 5.—The mutilated body of a man supposed to be that of John Miller, a boilermaker of Boston, was found on the tracks of the Midland Division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, near Wadsworth station, early to-day.

HEARST PROVES BAILEY AN OIL TRUST HIRELING

The following speech by William Randolph Hearst was delivered at El Paso, Texas, last Saturday night. Mr. Hearst produced photographic fac similes of notes in Senator Bailey's own handwriting, proving his secret service for the Standard Oil Company while he was in the Senate of the United States:

MR. HEARST'S SPEECH

Mr. Hearst spoke as follows:

"It has seemed to me my duty as a public man and even as a private American citizen to make certain facts which have come into my possession generally known to my fellow citizens.

"These facts are important to you as citizens in the conduct of your government, for they threaten the purity of public life, the equal justice of the laws and even the permanence of the republic itself.

"I have not made all of these disclosures in this campaign, but have made many in former years. I have not allowed any favoritism for the Democratic party or for the Republican party or would I for the Independence party if it were involved.

Hostile to No One.

"I have not displayed any hostility to any individual.

"I have made public the facts exactly as I have discovered them, with sincere sorrow that such conditions exist, but with an unshakable determination to let the people know the conditions, in the hope that the belief that they would remedy them.

"Certain guilty individuals who have been exposed not by me, but by the documents which I have from time to time discovered, have sought to invoke sympathy as a substitute for justice.

"They have wept aloud and rent their garments and declared that they are being unjustly persecuted by the powerful influences of this wicked man Hearst.

"My friends, I have not great power or influence, and there is no honest man in all this broad land who can say or who will say, that what I have has ever been used in persecution or oppression.

"I have tried at all times to be fair with my opponents, to be honorable with my business associates, to be faithful to public trust and to be just to all men. I have tried to serve my fellow citizens and I believe that I have never served them better than when I have made known to them the evils that exist in certain branches of their government and the traitors that are existing in the ranks of their public men.

"I believe that these evils are not final or fatal. I believe that they will be corrected by an informed and aroused people, and I believe that the republic will endure as long as the intelligence and morality of the people shall endure.

"I have confidence in the correctness and capacity of the people of this State and throughout the United States. In Cincinnati a peculiar and significant question was asked me the following question: 'Is not the character of Bailey the least important issue, in that the people do not really care how much their public men are exposed?'

"I made the following reply in the Cincinnati Enquirer of September 20th, 'No not at all. The people of Texas are a rugged honesty that commands respect and they would have repudiated Bailey if they had thoroughly understood his intimate connection with the Standard Oil, but the newspapers of the State are almost an partisan Democratic and they protected Bailey and distorted facts and misinformed the public and made the people think that Bailey was persecuted instead of merely purchased.'

"I said in Denver that I would deliver one final broadside at Mr. Foraker and Mr. Haskell and then leave them to the peaceful solitude of their political tombs. I say now that I will give one final review of Mr. Bailey's spectacular career and then resign him into the hands of his constituents to be reverently reposed upon the vacant side beside the late lamented Mr. Haskell of Oklahoma.

Exposes Bailey.

"I shall read document and records almost without comment lest I be accused of partisanship.

"I shall lay the evidence before you just as it has been laid before me and leave you to be the judges. I shall try to be free from bias, and I agree you on my word that I have no feeling against Mr. Foraker personally nor feeling against Mr. Haskell personally.

"I admit and proclaim, however, that I have a detestation of all trusted representatives of the people who betray the people and deeper detestation of those rich men who have gained their wealth under the liberal institutions of this country, and who use that wealth to subvert and corrupt the government of the country.

"To my mind there is no blacker crime against the country than this deed, more deserving the name and penalty of treason."

Accepted Oil Fees.

"Circumstances connected with the Foraker case and the Bailey case are peculiarly similar in many respects. Mr. Foraker while in Republican Senate of the United States received fees from the Standard Oil. Mr. Bailey while a Democratic Senator of the United States received fees from the Standard Oil.

"Mr. Forsker, while an agent of the Standard Oil and a representative of the people, took advantage of the peculiarity of his relations to borrow money from the Standard Oil.

"Mr. Bailey, while attorney for the Standard Oil and a representative of the people, took advantage of this delicate situation to borrow money from the Standard Oil.

"Mr. Forsker received polite messages from Mr. Archbold requesting his appearance at headquarters.

"Mr. Bailey received equally polite messages from Mr. Archbold requesting his attendance at the captain's office.

"These are, however, essential differences between the two cases.

Where Senators Differ.

"Mr. Forsker, being a Republican, admits the Standard Oil Association and attempts to avoid it.

"Mr. Bailey, being a Democrat, denies the Standard Oil Association and attempts to avoid it.

"There is one other important difference between the two cases that Mr. Forsker could his loan to the Standard Oil sent Mr. Bailey did not repay his. The records are some of them new and some of them old, I will read them in chronological order.

"First, photograph in Mr. Bailey's handwriting to Mr. Forsker. It reads:

"December 11, 1900.

"My Dear Senator.—Referring to our telephone conversation of to-day I now beg to enclose certificate of deposit to your favor for $5,000.

"Yours truly, John D. Archbold.

"To Hon. J. D. Forsker, 1500 Sixteenth St., Washington, D. C.

"Second, a photograph in Mr. Bailey's handwriting throughout is:

"Lindsay House, D. McGraw, proprietor, headquarters Post K. O. P. A. of America.

"Gainesville, Texas, 3-28-1901.

"To Mr. H. C. Pierce, St. Louis, Mo.

"My dear Pierce:—Send me New York exchange for $1750. Have it made payable to my order so that it will not be necessary for you to endorse it. Send it at once, as I ought to have had it several days ago.

"Your friend, J. W. Bailey."

$1,750 for "Expenses."

"The next is a photograph of entry of the books upon the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

"To J. W. Bailey, Gainesville, Texas.

"For legal expenses, account Texas matter, $1,750.00, as per letter J. W. Bailey hereto attached dated May 25.

"Next: A photograph of a letter to the Hon. J. B. Forsker, Washington, D. C. Mr. Forsker says that the large amount mentioned was a loan, and I have reason to believe that it was a loan.

"Jan. 27, 1902.

"My Dear Senator:—Responding to your favor of the 26th, I will give you pleasure to hand you herewith certificate of deposit (Number) in accordance with our understanding your letter states the conditions correctly, and I trust the transaction will be successfully consummated.

"Very truly yours,

"Jno. D. Archbold."

"Next a photograph of a note reading: "Washington, D. C., March 1, 1901. "$5,000.

"Four months after date I promise to pay to the order of H. C. Pierce eight thousand dollars at his office in St. Louis, Mo.

Next a photograph of an entry upon the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company:

"St. Louis, Mo., March 6, 1901.

"For account loan to J. W. B., as per note in hands of treasurer, $5,000.

Connections Proven.

"Next a photograph of a letter written from the Waldorf-Astoria:

"New York, 3-6, 1901.

"To J. P. Grace, Esq., Receiver:

"Dear Sir—Take this note into bills receivable and deposit company's check for like amount to my credit with Fourth National Bank, as I have given my check. (Signed) H. C. PIERCE.

"Next a letter to Hon. J. B. Forker:

"1500 Sixteenth street, Washington, D. C.

"My Dear Senator—I leave this afternoon for Atlantic City for a little rest. Expect to be there for a week or so. If you desire to talk with me you can call me there at the St. Charles Hotel.

"Very truly yours,

"John D. Archbold.

"Oct. 25, 1901."

"Next a letter, to Hon. John C. Sibley:

"Oct. 25, 1901.

"House of Representatives,

"Washington, D. C.

"We are anxious to have you here as early day as possible with Senator Bailey. Can you not do so? If you will do us the favor to communicate with him and fix date, he can be here. Greatly appreciating your services.

"Sincerely yours,

"John D. Archbold."

Oil Transactions.

"The Waters-Pierce transaction with Mr. Bailey took place in 1901 and Mr. Bailey has claimed in defense that he did not know at that time that the Waters-Pierce concern was a branch of the Standard Oil Company.

"But on October 25, 1901, Mr. Bailey was receiving a summons from Mr. Archbold to come to New York and have a talk there at as early a day as possible.

"Mr. Archbold will not send a telegram of Senator Bailey at 26 Broadway took place in the latter part of 1898, and it was in 1900 was it not, that the Texas situation became acute? To refresh the very best of my recollection the suit against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in Texas was declared against them in the early part of 1900, and they were to be evicted from the State. The Standard Oil Company in Texas became very active when this decision was reached and developed means to guarantee themselves in the same position they had always been, that is in absolute control.

"These worthless deny sworn evidence.

"They deny documentary proof. They deny photographic fac similes. They are both excellent examples of the cornered coyote in politics. Mr. Bailey makes the finest front, however, and gives and expresses excellent imitation of outraged virtue, with bear tears streaming down his cheeks and a blaze of halo shining about his devoted head.

"His righteous indignation that the innocent Mr. Sibley should be dragged into any matter pertaining to the standard Oil is most affecting, and even tones like Mr. Pierce, who had been touched by Mr. Bailey before were probably touched again. Mr. Bailey said before an investigation committee of 1901 (I quote from the Houston Journal, page number 162):

"My enemies have not been content to stop with dragging Mr. Francis, who was connected with me in a perfectly legitimate business transaction into the political feuds of this State, but they have also attempted to stain the Hon. Joseph C. Sibley, with this miserable accusation, although as is shown by the letter which Mr. Sibley addressed to the Speaker of the House he does not even know what the exact nature of the quarrel is. In his letter he speaks of Francis having been charged with procuring my assistance for the Standard Oil Company, showing that he does not know enough about the matter to know that the controversy has arisen over the readmission of the Water-Pierce Oil Company.

(Sibley doubtless knew they were the same firm in effect.)

"I have known Mr. Sibley for several years and I never knew a truer or more honest man, and I cannot express my indignation at having him assailed before the country as an agent of corruption simply because I happen to enjoy the honor of his friendship.'

"You have heard Mr. Bailey's splendid eulogy of Mr. Sibley. You have also doubtless read Mr. Bailey's glowing testimonial to himself. I say they are both equally false. I say that Mr. Sibley is nothing more than a wretched, little political spy introduced into Congress by the Standard Oil to report to them on all legislation in which they had an interest and to communicate for them to all Government officials in whom they had an interest.

"I am going to read you some letters to Mr. Sibley from Mr. Archbold and from Mr. Sibley to Mr. Archbold. You may decide for yourselves whether they justify Mr. Bailey's estimate of Mr. Sibley or mine.

"Hon. J. C. Sibley, Franklin, Pa.

"26 Broadway, May 31, 1900.

"My Dear Mr. Sibley:—I am only today in receipt of your very kind favor of the 29th, to which I have responded by telegram. Dear Mr. Sibley, I beg to enclose you herewith certificate of deposit to your favor for $5,000, sent you at the request of Mr. Bailey, the purpose of which you no doubt understand with him. Permit me to improve this opportunity also to express my high appreciation of your most courteous and efficient action in response to our request regarding the consideration of the subsidy matter with Mr. Griscom. Very truly yours,

"JOHN D. ARCHBOLD.

"Hon. J. C. Sibley, Franklin, Pa.

"26 Broadway.

"Dear Mr. Sibley:—I am in receipt of a letter dated yesterday from Mr. Patton, from which I quote 'I am just here from a vacation and find your letter of the 6th instant to Mr. Cassatt, who has not yet returned from Europe. He expects to sail, however on the St. Paul Sept. 15.' My attention has been called to the matter to which you refer and it is hardly necessary for me to say that we are in full sympathy with your views as expressed in your letter. We have put some influence to work through our friends in the various counties through which our line runs which I trust will help to bring about the result we have in mind to attain.

"I am sure this will be the sentiment of every well-meaning citizen.

"Very truly yours,

"JOHN D. ARCHBOLD.

"Hon. J. C. Sibley, Franklin, Pa.

Distinguished Republican.

"26 Broadway, May 22, 1900.

"Dear Mr. Sibley:—We have it from a confidential source that some distinguished Republican representative is expected to speak in connection with the proposed Ray constitutional amendment, especially against our company. The statement being that he is loaded against the Standard Oil. I need not tell you that we are pretty weary of the old round of lies, and I write to ask your kindly interest in the matter to the end that you may if possible discover who the distinguished party is and if it is at all possible, guard against his explosion. It may not be possible for any one to find anything of the kind or for you to accomplish anything in the way of stopping him but we very greatly appreciate your friendly interest in the matter. His name is not given us. With kind regards, I am,

"Yours very truly,

"Jno. D. Archbold."

Tells of Visit to President.

"To Hon. J. C. Sibley, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

"Joseph C. Sibley, P. R. chairman Committee of Manufactures.

"House of Representatives U.S. Washington.

"Nov. 17, 1904.

"My dear Archbold:—I had quite a long session with the President and thought you might like to hear. He was effusively cordial and said he wanted to work in harmony with Congress. I told him that there was a weight of responsibility upon such as is seldom laid upon presidents, etc., and that the American people were in for great development and especially, if we were cautious and conservative, etc.

"He reply was, 'Yes, by George, Congressman, we must take no steps in the dark and this is no time for radical action or legislation, and you men in Congress must not get radical because of the great victory, etc.' To all of this I assented and told him we could never answer to the country for hasty or ill digested legislation. He wanted my views on the tariff, and I told him we needed no general revision, that my opinion was that quieting down and rebuilding would unsettle the public mind and restrict production, prevent new enterprise until effects of new schedules could be ascertained by demonstration. Told him it might be, and probably was, true that there existed local grunities and inequalities and that I thought we needed no 'tariff revision,' but 'tariff equalization.'

"He said: 'By George, Congressman, that is a most happy phrase, you have hit the nail square on the head. That is what we must do. We will correct inequalities, etc.' He hardly expects to send any message to this Congress on the subject, but may outline something. Mr. Moody (Attorney-General) you know is presented to retire March 4th prox. Mr. Moody told me the message that he says he has told no other man except the President, this:

"That he has in consideration of some things said to him by the President consented to stay through for three or four years. Moody is able and honest. He is manly and fair and I think less Babic than Knox to make a 'Trust busting' a pastime.

"Please do not mention this story about Moody, but I will let you have it for whatever value it may be to you.

"Sincerely yours,

"Joseph C. Sibley."

"In conclusion let me state Mr. Forsker's explanation of the loan he secured from the Standard Oil. He declares in a letter statement that he borrowed the money to save control of a leading newspaper in Ohio and that he returned the money later. I believe that to be true. On the other hand let us quote Mr. Grist's sworn account of the loan Mr. Haskell secured from the Standard Oil Company.

"Q.—Then this note of Senator Bailey's became an asset of the Waters Pierce Oil Company? A.—It was placed in bill's receivable account, and was finally charged to profit and loss account Dec. 31, 1900.

"Q.—Why was it charged to profit and loss? A.—It was not paid, and in making up the records of the business I treated the matter as other payments to Senator Bailey, that is as a gift or in payment of services and charged the same so as not to have it appear as an asset, and then so advised H. C. Pierce.

"I believe that to be true.

TWO DYING IN TAXICAB STRIKE RIOTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Violence incited by "special" policemen and strike-breakers continued to-day in the strike of the chauffeurs of the New York Taxicab Company, but among the leaders of the strikers there was a disposition to bring the dispute to arbitration.

The most serious disturbance thus far resulted in the shooting by John Mahoney, a special policeman hired by the taxicab company, of Charles Hildenburg, a boy of sixteen. The bullet entered his abdomen, striking the spine. The lad is dying to-day in Roosevelt Hospital.

In another mêlée in front of the Holland House, Arthur Sanders, also a special, was beaten over the head with a heavy wrench by a strike sympathizer and may die of his injuries.

LITTLE GIRL BADLY BITTEN BY PET CAT

Little Viola Wedger was ferociously attacked by her pet cat Teddy yesterday while on the way with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Wedger, from their summer home at Hough's Neck to their Winter residence in West Somerville. The animal's brain is now being examined by Dr. Francis Aide, inspector of animals for the city of Quincy, for the purpose of making sure that Teddy was not afflicted with rabies. If any taint of that dread disease is found in the cat's head Viola, who is ten years old, will probably be taken to the Pasteur Institute in New York for phrophylactic treatment.

Teddy was a gray and white cat and was adored by Viola, who is an only child. When the family started for their Somerville home by electric car the cat was put in a basket which the child carried. At Central square, Quincy, the cat made a desperate attempt to escape from the basket. The little girl tried to push its head back and Teddy with a frightened snarl fastened his teeth in her wrist. The cat had to be strangled to death before the jaws relaxed their vicious hold.

BIG LINER AND DREDGER CRASH IN HARBOR FOG

The Laurentian Reaches Port With Starboard Anchor Torn From Fastenings.

Four transatlantic liners and a fruit steamer from Costa Rica docked here today, and one of the liners, the Laurentian of the Allan line, received a severe jar and lost one of her anchors in a collision with a dredger while coming up the harbor.

All five vessels came up the harbor slowly, the fog having only half lifted. The Laurentian was nosing along cautiously when a tug, towing one of the big Breyman dredgers and a mudscow behind the dredger, came along a course laid across the Laurentian's bow.

According to the passengers on the liner, the Laurentian slowed down till she nearly stopped and tried to avoid the collision, but the liner's prow hit the dredger so smartly that the big steamer cuttered from end to end. The stocky dredger was shaken up some, but suffered no damage.

The Leyland liner Devonian arrived from Liverpool with sixty-three saloon passengers. Among them were Professor P. J. and Mrs. Leaney of Washington, who are returning from a sojourn abroad.

The White Star liner Cymric arrived from Liverpool and Queenstown with 100 saloon and 223 steerage passengers. Among them were Mrs. Thomas Bailey Aldrich, widow of the noted author.

The fruiter arriving was the Sparta of the United Fruit Company's line. She brings half a dozen passengers and 35,000 bunches of bananas from Port Limon, Porto Rico.

COLE AND AMES HAVE 'KISSED AND MADE UP'

Fifth congressional district politics, with its unusual spectacle of the Democrats nominating Congressman Butler Ames, disclose an alliance, offensive and defensive, between Congressman Ames and Speaker of the House Cole that presages a fight from both upon the Republican State machine.

That Cole was defeated for the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor Saturday by the machine is evident now to the gentleman from Andover.

That Ames and Cole reached a settlement of their differences just prior to the State primaries is evidenced from the support that the congressman gave the Speaker in Lowell. The State machine buried itself against Ames, however, and Cole made a sorry showing in Lowell.

It was a coterie of Cole Democrats, led by Cole's Democratic managers in Lawrence, that forced the nomination of Butler Ames for Congressman last week.

That both Ames and Cole are out against the State machine and will be found leading the Bird Democrats in the fight for goodness in the Republican party is assured from the developments in both the Republican State convention and the Democratic convention of Fifth District Democrats.

To-day, adding interest to the convention of Fifth District Democratic politics, Humphrey O'Sullivan of Lowell is in Boston for a conference with Chairman Synan of the Democratic State Committee, hoping to have a new convention of Democrats in the Fifth District.

500 WANT TO PLAY IN "IF I WERE KING"

Mason street was blockaded to-day to such an extent that the police had to be called to clear a passageway. The reason was that about 500 men wanted to become soldiers, archers and court nobles in the production of "If I Were King." It was the largest crowd I ever saw make application for a production," said Stage Director E. L. Snader.

"THE DEVIL" OF POLITICS.

WAR IN EAST? "FOGGY," SAYS JAP NAVY MAN

Rear Admiral Rokuro Yashiro of the Japanese Navy, recently an attache of the Japanese Legation in Berlin, arrived here on the Leyland liner Devonian from Liverpool to-day with the most unique opinion concerning Yankee sentiment that has been broached since the famous dissertation of Mark Twain on that burning subject.

The reporters wanted to interview him on the Eastern situation, but had to let it by easy stages via the weather.

"Very foggy," uttered the press affably.

"Fog! O, yes, very much," said Yashiro in broken English.

"What is the prevailing sentiment in Japan now regarding America?" was the next question.

"But the fog is lifting" said the bland Oriental, with an engaging smile.

The reporters thought he had not understood. They repeated their query slowly and distinctly. Yashiro's face "lit up."

"O, very much," he said, "but your climate is apt to be uncertain, I am told."

"Will Japan maintain her armament at the highest possible state of efficiency?" was the next question.

"Yes, I find it very bracing," said the rear admiral.

MRS. HAINS FAILS TO FILE HER AFFIDAVIT

GENERAL HAINS ACCUSED OF THREAT, DECLARES HE EXPECTED DEFAULT.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The charge that General Peter Conover Hains, held for the murder of William E. Annis, himself threatened to shoot Annis on sight, after hearing the confession of his daughter-in-law, is made in the sworn statement of Claudia Libby Hains.

General Hains to-day denied in the most emphatic manner that he had ever made such a threat. The statement of Mrs. Hains should have been filed in the form of an affidavit, in the Supreme Court of Brooklyn to-day in support of her motion for counsel fees, alimony and the custody of her three children, but for some reason it was not filed.

False, Says General.

General Hains called on John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for his two sons, to-day. In the lawyer's office he learned that the affidavit, a copy of which he had seen, had not been presented.

He said to a reporter: "I did not expect that she would submit that affidavit. It is too remarkable in character. Why, in it she accuses me of having threatened to kill Annis on sight. She doesn't fix the date on which I am alleged to have made the threat, but it is fair to assume that she refers to a time after I heard her confession.

"Her position is that affidavit is very ambiguous. She denies that she made any confession, yet she refers to it all through, and says that by it I was so wrought up that I swore to kill Annis on sight.

Tells of Money Offer.

"That it is a lie, I might have been justified in once an action, but I did not make the threat.

"We do not want Mrs. Hains on our side; we want her against us. She offered for money to favor our side, but we shall not give her a cent."

Lawyer McIntyre said that unless the court consented to receive the affidavit by mail, the application for alimony, counsel fees and the custody of the children, who are now with General Hains and his wife, at Fort Hancock, N. J., would go by default.

LAWSON HURT, AND CHAPMAN CLASH WAITS

Thomas W. Lawson is at home to-day suffering from injuries sustained when his horse ran away and overturned the phaeton in which he and his daughter, Miss Buny Lawson, were riding at North Scituate. The report of the accident was doubly interesting because of the threat of a clash between the author of "Frenzied Finance" and President Melville D. Chapman of the Orphan Copper Company.

In local newspapers to-day Mr. Chapman had an advertisement protesting against Mr. Lawson holding his proposed "hearing" on Orphan Copper stock in his capacity of chairman of the Boston curb.

There was a big crowd on the "curb" to-day expecting to see some exciting events if the threatened clash came, but as Mr. Lawson was confined to his home nothing occurred out of the ordinary.

GREAT LACE SALE OPENS IN HUB TO-DAY

The opening exhibition and sale of one of the largest assortments of commercial laces ever seen in this country opens to this city.

Besides an extensive assortment of real Point Gaze, Duchesse, Applique, Bureau, Venise, De Flandres, Milanese, Florentine and real Irish crochet, a number of pieces of real Torchons and Valenciennes will be shown. With these genuine laces will be exhibited imitation Torchons and Valenciennes of the highest grade of workmanship, the difference being only distinguishable to an expert.

The laces are to be exposed to-day on the counters of McCarthy's lace store at West and Tremont streets, and every piece will be for sale.

The arrangement of the store, in collecting the exhibition, went to the four corners of this continent where laces are manufactured so cheaply in proportion to the imported prices as to enable them to be sold to the public at prices so reasonable as to be astonishing.

With these American laces are exhibited the commercial laces of Europe, purchased there at prices which will permit their purchase here at the most reasonable prices possible. The exhibition, according to the manager of the store, is complete, every known commercial lace being exposed and a sufficient quantity purchased to enable the public to get exactly the pattern and quality they desire.

With the laces are smaller exhibitions of embroideries, neckware, veilings, ruchings and handkerchiefs.

A fire on the third floor of the five-story apartment house at No. 47 Garden street, West End, interrupted Yom Kippur services in the synagogue in the apartments. The fire was caused by the upsetting of a candle in the parlor of G. H. Grunt. Mr. Grunt's eleven-year-old son escaped through a window on to the fire escape. The loss was about $400.

TEN PERISH IN NEW YORK TENEMENT FIRE

FLAMES QUICKLY SPREAD THROUGH FOUR STORIES; SEVERAL SERIOUSLY BURNED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Ten persons are known to have lost their lives and six were seriously hurt early to-day when a fire, starting mysteriously in the ground floor hallway of the four-story tenement, No. 71½ Mulberry street, licked its way to the roof. The fire spread quickly on every floor, and the majority of the twelve families had barely had time to escape in their night clothing.

The charred bodies of Dominick Fatchilli, his wife and three children were found in the hallway on the top floor. On the floor below was found the body of a man named Scatino, who had been trying to save his baby daughter. The child, horribly burned, was rescued. Near the body of Scatino was that of a girl of twelve and a youth of eighteen.

The fire was discovered just before 1 o'clock by Charles Farrence. Charles Lino and Joseph Leconi, who were returning to their homes from a dance. After sending in an alarm they went up the fire escapes and through them fifteen children were saved. They passed the little ones down the escapes and handed them to policemen from the first floor escape.

Many others were penned in the hallways and rescued by firemen and police. Others jammed the fire escapes and were taken down on sensing ladders. Several jumped from windows. The injured:

Frank Perunillo, eighteen years, broken foot, burned about face, internal injuries.

Mrs. Rosalia Magliocco, fell down stairs; broken leg and internal injuries.

All of the injured were taken to the Hudson Street Hospital.

HINDOO GUESTS OF MRS. BULL

Dr. J. C. Bose, professor of physiology in the Calcutta University, arrived here to-day on the White Star liner Cymric, with his wife, and with S. Nag, his assistant.

The three Orientals were met at the dock by Mrs. Ole Bull of Cambridge, widow of the famous violinist. They will be Mrs. Bull's guests for two months in Cambridge, and then will continue on the two years' journey they are making through the Occident.

Dr. Bose is a supporter of the new idea that there is no gap in the spheres of evolution between plant and animal life.

RICH LYNN MEN IN FIST FIGHT

During a heated discussion Thomas F. Harley, one of Lynn's richest property owners, and William O'Shea, a trustee of the Hurley estate, and a prominent and wealthy lawyer of Lynn, came to blows on Munroe street, in Lynn, this afternoon.

Mr. Hurley says Mr. O'Shea on Monroe street at about 1 o'clock and is said to have stopped him and made some angry remarks. The two rushed together and fell to the sidewalk, bystanders separating them before serious damage was done.

TRAINMEN FIGHT NEW SCHEDULE

A general protest against the introduction to-day of a new schedule of runs on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad system will be made by the several lodges of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Five thousand members of the order are employed on the system, all of whom are up in arms against the proposed merger of the freight and passenger trainmen service on that road.

300 MORE JOIN LYNN LASTERS OUT ON STRIKE

One Plant Forced to Close and Others Nearly Caught Up. With Work in Hand.

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Oct. 5.—The shoe lasters' strike spread to-day. A total of 300 workmen, including low lasters, quit their respective factories before noon. According to Business Agent Michael J. Treacy, all the factories in the city are now completely tied up.

Thirty lasters employed by the A. E. Little plant walked out and fifty more quit their benches in the Cross & Putnam, Howe & Brooker, Randall & Adams and the Williams & Clark factories.

Shortly before the noon hour the lasters in the William Porter & Son factory on Blake street hung out a sign that they would all quit at noon. The news spread rapidly, and in a few minutes the factory was surrounded by the strikers who cheered for the men inside. There are twenty lasters in the Porter shop, which is an organized factory.

Fifteen strike breakers employed in the Joseph Caunt factory, where the strike started because of the alleged violation of a contract by the firm, walked out today and joined the ranks of the strikers.

The Sprague & Hathaway factory closed to-day, to continue closed until the trouble ends. One hundred hands were obliged to go home. The shutdown is due to the fact that the shop is tied up by the lasters going out. It is believed that many other factories will be obliged to shut down in a short time, as they have almost caught up with the work on hand. Although they are advertising for help in many cities, the manufacturers are finding it almost impossible to hire strikebreakers at any price.

The total number of men now out on strike is 1,500. Of this number 1,223 are lasters. There will be a mass meeting in Lasters' Hall to-night to discuss the situation.

R. S. Bauer, president of the Lynn Board of Trade, is endeavoring to bring about arbitration of the strike.

The State Board of Arbitration to-day announced that they would visit Lynn tomorrow and interview all the parties to the labor dispute.

Mayor Thomas F. Porter to-day visited the State House in response to appeals made by hundreds of merchants and business men seeking the settlement of the strike. The Mayor believes that a serious calamity threatens in the continuation of the strike, and following his interview with the board they decided to visit Lynn.

Dear Sirs:—

The New Inverted Gas Lamps, with which we have equipped our store, are very satisfactory. We are satisfied that this new lamp is superior to all others, including the best electric lamps.

We figure an increase of 77% in candle power, and at the same time a saving of 38% in cost of gas as compared with electricity.

The practical lighting of these lights, especially on show cases, is very marked and attractive. Quality and diffusion are very soft, having much the same color as daylight.

The Very Lucky Escape of One William Tobey

By KENNETT HARRIS

"DOC" had quite a hard time of it with Bill Tobey.

"Doc" was young. Even the fluffy little side whisker that decorated his smooth, pink cheek could not disguise that, so dignity was even more than the ordinary professional necessity to him.

He knew that it would be undignified to slap Bill Tobey for his slurring remarks, and he was equally sure that it would be more undignified if Bill slapped back. Bill's head being about the size of a small ham and his general proportions being in keeping.

Nothing but a deadly weapon, "Doc" felt, would have prevailed against that robust, muscular hulk, and he was not in the habit of carrying anything more lethal than his medicine case.

Bill Tobey "didn't take no stock in doctors." Furthermore, he took a particular pride and pleasure in delivering his opinion of medicine and medical practitioners. He had never had a day's sickness in his life.

"And why?" he asked. "Because I've never let them cussed doctors dose me. Because I've always trusted to nacher. You trust to nacher an' you'll come out all right nine chances out of ten. Call in a doctor an' it's nine chances out of ten that you won't. The best luck that you can have with 'em is to get well enough to mortgage somethin' to pay their bills."

Always Had a Gibe for "Doc"

Ever since "Doc" had set z his new shingle to the Main street breeze, Bill Tobey had assailed him with his banter.

"Who's the victim, 'Doc?'" was his customary inquiry when the young man passed him carrying his little black bag.

"Doc" usually smiled in response, but there was rancor in his heart.

"Poor old feller," sighed Bill, hearing of the death of a patient of the young physician's, "He'd made out to live an' enjoy his meals for nigh on to ninety years. Nacher had took care of him an' carried him along safe all that time. Then they send for 'Doc' an' inside of eight hours he's dead!"

He met "Doc" in the drug store. "You got to your work on Uncle Ezra, I see," he said, cheerfully.

"Some day perhaps I'll get in my work on you," retorted "Doc."

"I don't know what for," said Bill Tobey, "There's bout twenty nine hundred things that might be the matter of me, but all you could do would be to guess at which one it was an' fill me up with dope that 'ud make me feel worse."

"What would you do if you had small-pox?" asked "Doc," turning on him.

"Leave it to nacher," replied Bill Tobey promptly.

They Rankled in "Doc's" Heart

For long months "Doc" let these and other slights rankle in his mind. Often when he read of some direful, slow, racking poison, he imagined Bill Tobey with an adequate dose of it working in his system and the delight with which he, "Doc," would watch the effects. Painful surgical operations with anaesthetics never upon Bill Tobey were other luxuries of fancy.

Then one night he got his call. At first he could hardly believe his ears.

"Who did you say?" he asked the woman.

"My husband, Mr. Tobey," she replied. "He's in terrible pain and he won't let us do anything for him. He insists you come and see him."

After a question or two "Doc" carried his medicine case into his tiny dispensary and with a grim smile on his face filled certain vials. Then he went over to Tobey's.

Tobey was in bed, writhing and groaning dismally, but at the doctor's entrance he became comparatively quiet. He looked frightened, anxious eyes while the young man felt his pulse.

"Where do you feel the pain worst?" asked "Doc."

He Was a Mountain of Misery

Tobey placed his hand on his abdomen and groaned. The doctor's expression became several shades more serious. For a minute or two he sat watching the squirming giant, his lips pursed thoughtfully.

"Do something for me, 'Doc,'" implored the patient. "Do something quick!"

"I might do the wrong thing, Mr. Tobey," said "Doc." "I can only make a guess at your trouble, and I mightn't guess right."

"I was only feelin' when I said that," whimpered Tobey.

"It might be appendicitis," said 'Doc,' "in which case I should have to open you, of course. I don't know whether you would be willing to submit to an operation even to save your life."

"Don't say I've got that, 'Doc,'" he pleaded. "I don't say you have," said 'Doc,' "but it might be something worse. Put this under your tongue and keep it there till I take it out."

He shook down his thermometer as he spoke and inserted it in his patient's mouth.

Turned Him on the Spit Awhile

"Excessive and perverted peristaltic action," he commented, as Tobey groaned and underwent a fresh spasm. "Too bad! Possibly hepatic, in which case I'm very much afraid that we'll have to try some palliative measure. I'd hate to resort to that, though, except in the last extremity. Now, let's see what temperature you've got."

He looked at the thermometer, frowned and whistled. "Ninety-eight and two-fifths!" he exclaimed. "Great guns!"

"Is it fatal, 'Doc'—likely to be?" asked Tobey.

"If it's a case of pestilential cholera it may be only a question of a few days—even less—before collapse, and unless there's reaction that means death," 'Doc' rubbed his chin thoughtfully.

"For heaven's sake do somethin'!" cried Tobey piteously. "Give me somethin' for it! You can pull me out if you try. Try, 'Doc'!"

"Doc" opened his medicine case and took out the vials that he had filled in the dispensary. In the act of uncorking one of them he suddenly paused. Bill Tobey's face had grown white and his mouth was working. "Doc" recorked the vial and turned to him.

Just Plain Stomach Ache

"It's not pestilential cholera," he said. "You're going to get well, don't you fear. Shall I tell you what it is you've got?"

Bill Tobey nodded.

"It's a plain, old-fashioned stomach ache," said "Doc." "It's something that you can leave to 'nacher' pretty safely. Though you can have your wife give you some hot ginger tea and a hot brick if you want to. Don't eat the brick and don't eat any more unripe pumpkin melons. Good night."

"Doc," said Bill Tobey the next morning in the doctor's office, "you know what you said I had last night? Well, couldn't you give it some other name if it's got one? Ain't it got sunthin' with Latin onto it?"

"What do you think about the medical profession, anyway, Mr. Tobey?" asked "Doc."

"We'd be in a bad box without 'em," replied Tobey. "You'll never hear me say another word agin 'em."

"You had perverted peristalsis, Mr. Tobey," said "Doc," "and you got off pretty luckily, all things considered."

How a Bride Should Give Her First "Tea"---By Mary Hutton Pell

[The following article is the second in a most valuable and instructive series by Mrs. Pell, written especially for the BOSTON AMERICAN. Mrs. Pell, who is an acknowledged leader among the Four Hundred and an authority on social usages, will also answer inquiries on etiquette and social matters addressed to her in care of the BOSTON AMERICAN.]

IN these latter days, when the lines of social demarcation are so closely drawn, doing what is and what is not socially correct are divided by a single hair-line, it behooves little Mrs. Junebride to pay due heed and attention to the very latest dicta and pronouncements upon what is strictly en regle and what is not.

There are many points in old world civilization which we newer nations would do well to copy; and one of these is the fashion—or fad, if you choose to call it—of making the last year at school for our young girls one of housekeeping and social duties.

In Germany and in France, as well as in England, there are many members of the nobility who earn a large income, and incidentally maintain their social position in fact, by keeping establishments where prospective debutantes are fully drilled in all the needs and requirements of the most fashionable life. And a goodly fee is required, too, for such instruction.

It is not by merely taking notes from lectures that those future leaders of fashion acquire their information. It is rather by the actual doing of the things needed that they come by their knowledge.

The first principle of housekeeping is that you must know how to do a thing yourself, to do it right, and in the best way, before you can even hope to instruct your maids as to how you want it done. For there is always a wrong way to do things as well as the right; and our little Mrs. Junebride has had that truism strenuously hackneyed by her mother in the days when she was receiving her training as to how to run a house of her own some day.

Practical Lessons for Brides

So, the Spring before her marriage, the busy times with her dressmaker and milliner were interspersed with interviews with the upholsterer and cabinet maker. But best of all there was a series of lessons—practical and expert housekeeping—which she drilled the prospective Mrs. Junebride in all the essentials pertaining to her position.

Not for a moment was it lost sight of that she was an inexperienced housekeeper, engaged to a man with a very moderate income, but with the knowledge of how things should be correctly done; and the aspiration to keep her little establishment quite up to the same mark of refinement and social correctness as the more pretentious home of millionaires.

So, as the June weddings took rather more than their due time for preparation, it was decided that the final lessons of the class in housekeeping should be postponed to the Autumn. Little Mrs. Junebride, quick to seize an advantage, suggested that those should be held at her home. This gave her chance to demonstrate how much she had profited by the teacher's instructions, and gave her as well an opportunity to test the truth of her words under the critical eye of the instructor.

Just How First "Tea" Is Given

Now, this first tea is in the nature of an experiment. She will see that well to everything, from the rug on the polished hardwood floor right on up to the chandelier will be looked at and criticised, while the table and its settings will be literally pulled to pieces by both the teacher and her fellow pupils. But there was never a better sensitive to perfection than a frank criticism.

The little cards—just her own visiting card, with "tea, from 4 to 6 o'clock," written in above her day at home—have been mailed for the past week.

MRS. MARY HUTTON PELL

The tea is brought in on a tray, set with the tea set, and placed on a table which the maid has previously put in front of the teamaker, not forcing her—as it would on hostess; the silver service is shining bright-ly, and neatly arranged, so that the different pieces stand ready to the hand of the tongs vainly which should be in plain sight.

How to Wear Jewelry

There's a Real Art in Knowing How to Put it On

EVERY woman who wears jewels few women. There are brunettes who can wear them in the ears and look well. The very pale blonde also looks pretty with diamonds in her ears, but the average woman should wear her diamonds elsewhere.

There are some beauties who always wear topaz and other yellow stones; they do not venture to wear brilliant colors. They make a specialty of all the shades of tortoise shell and gold, but they never put on either coral or blue.

The amber-loving woman is of the cream type of complexion. Her skin is perfectly clear, and her cheeks show a faint red. Lucky is the woman who can wear coral. But she must be young.

Men and Their Hats--Both Are So Very Queer

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HAVE you ever watched a man put on his hat?

A woman stands in front of a looking glass and frankly flirtates. She pats her hair, takes her veil off three times before she gets it just right, and then starts off serene in the consciousness of having "prinked" to her heart's content.

Just because men do very well go through all these manoeuvres he sets up the cry that woman in vain. In reality, she is not a whit more vain than man. She is simply more honest.

I was say this know it to be the truth, for I have made it a point for the last few weeks to watch a number of men as they put on their hats.

To begin with, not one of them will wear a silver hat after the 15th of September, and that in itself is a vanity of vanities.

This being the case, every man just now is wearing a new hat.

Some of the hats are soft, some are hard, and some are little round sailor shapes, queer enough and ugly enough to spoil the look of an Apollo Belvidere.

How a Man Puts on His Hat

And this is how they put them on. First they put them rather far back on their heads, then pull them smartly forward, then arrange the brim into form, then, finally, if the hat is soft, give it a rakish tilt—oh, just the weeniest tilt, but it's meant to be careless and rakish all the same, and then—they go out and look blandly and appreciatively at themselves in every shop window and mirror they pass.

I know exactly how a man feels when he puts his hat on the side of his head. I felt that way when I wore my first train.

Woman's vanity has the tips and downs. It is a balloon that is easily pricked. But man's is firm and sure. It might be battered to bits, but it could never be pricked.

In novels the hero flings his hat carelessly on his head. In reality, he knows to a hair the angle that hat should rest at, and he puts it there.

There is a little green Alpine hat which has made a brave bid for popularity, but fortunately so far the success achieved has not been very remarkable.

Why Does He Deny His Vanity?

Of course, there is no reason why man should not be just as keenly interested in his hat as woman is in hers; but why not frankly acknowledge that he is, or else cease his everlasting railings at woman and her vanity?

There is no getting around the fact that women's hats this season are absurd; but perhaps, only foolish slaves to fashion will wear them.

And, supposing, gentlemen, that you do consider us vain creatures, you, to put it baldly, mind your own business on the subject.

We don't care whether you are vain or not. We let you alone.

Of course, what is sauce for the goose is not always sauce for the gander, and we patient women can never expect consistency from man; but does wear the little hard sailors or the little green Alpines unless you want to be accused of consistency? Leave that to your headgear than you are willing to admit.

WASH SIDE COMBS

A DETAIL of which even the most fastidious women seem unmindful is the frequent washing of combs. Although those same women may be scrupulous regarding the care of the comb and brush which they use in arranging the hair they seem to forget that the comb which is worn demand even more vigilance. Hygiene exacts that the side combs be washed twice a week in warm water in which has been dissolved one tablespoonful of borax to each quart of water. Rinse by holding under the cold water faucet and allowing the water to run through with force.

Toilet Table Hints

ONCE a month is often enough to wash the hair, unless it is exceptionally oily.

In washing the hair do not rub the soap directly on the hair, as this tends to make the hair sticky. Be sure to rinse out every particle of soap.

Prepared chalk is very good for whitening the teeth, but if used too often will, in time, destroy the enamel.

Deep breathing in the open air will help reduce the waist.

Biting the lips causes the skin to become tough and hard, and it then naturally becomes pale.

FOUR HURT AS AUTO IS HURLED INTO FIELD

HUB VICTIMS IN CRASH; RUN INTO TROLLEY AND WAGON; HORSE KILLED.

The Lynn police are to-day investigating a spectacular automobile accident in which four Boston people were hurt, one of them so seriously that she will be in the hospital for a few days.

The injured:

Miss Annie Clark of No. 28 Yarmouth street, Boston, contusions of the head and body bruises, now in Lynn Hospital.

Miss Ruth Bruels, No. 28 Yarmouth street, Boston, cash on right arm, knee sprained and face cut, sent home.

The four people were in a heavy touring car which was speeding along the Lynn-Salem turnpike last night. In front of the Thompson farm the auto hit a stone and boggy, killed the horse, skidded along for fifty yards, ran into an oncoming trolley car and was pitched twenty feet into a field. It landed upside down.

The cause of the accident is not definitely known yet. The police say they hear that the car was traveling very fast when it ran into the horse and boggy in front of the Thompson farm. Hoey, the chauffeur, is said to claim that the steering gear failed to respond when he started to turn out for the horse and boggy and that, after this collision with the last-mentioned vehicle, the auto became unmanageable.

After killing the horse the auto hit the oncoming trolley with a terrific smash. The car was stopped, and the crew and passengers ran out to aid the autoists. Miss Clark, the most injured of the auto party, was picked up unconscious. It was thought at first her skull was fractured. Lynn hospital physicians say she escaped this injury, but that she will not be able to leave the hospital for two or three days.

The others were patched up at the hospital and were able to continue to Boston last night.

The police asked the chauffeur for his license, and were told, so they say, that in the excitement following the smash, someone stole that document.

2 NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH AS AUTO FALLS OVER EMBANKMENT

William Hurd, son of Edward P. Hurd of No. 508 Walnut street, Newtonville, assistant treasurer of the United Shoe Machinery Company, and his chauffeur, James J. Harris, narrowly escaped death yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on Washington street near Beacon, shot across the electric car tracks, and after toppling over an embankment landed upside down. Hurd, who was steering, was thrown out as the machine skidded, and Harris fell out just as the machine started to capsize. The men escaped with a shaking up and a few bruises.

RIDDER MAY BE AMBASSADOR IF BRYAN WINS

Ambition Declared to Be to Represent Government at Berlin.

DEMOCRATS WONDERING

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—"What will he get out of this campaign if Mr. Bryan is elected?" This is the question on the lips of every Democratic leader of consequence at national headquarters in the Hoffman House every time the balky form of Herman Ridder, treasurer of the National Committee, darkens the corridors of the hotel, or whenever his name is mentioned in the cafe.

During the last few days there has been a noticeable change on all sides, and everyone is now agreed that Ridder's chief ambition is to get to court at Berlin as Ambassador from the United States to the German government.

This explanation has been accepted on all sides as satisfactory. No one familiar with the political shiftings of various men in New York was surprised particularly when Mr. Ridder walked into the Bryan camp in the Hoffman house for the purposes of collecting the pennies and nickels to be used in Mr. Bryan's behalf.

Even the fact that he was denouncing Mr. Bryan bitterly at the Democratic national convention at Denver in July made little or no difference, as Mr. Ridder's political gains in the past have usually been obtained only after bitter denouncing, which led up to negotiations which resulted in satisfactory pre-election pledges.

Seven years ago at the Amen Corner dinner following the election of Seth Low as Mayor of New York city the following couplet in German was written for the souvenir menu of the Amenera:

Hermann, und Seth Ridderbundel klein.
Zehy Hinmchen ham'se.
Doch swanzig Aemtel fein.

At that time Mr. Ridder had passed through three municipal, one national and two State campaigns since his entrance into the political arena of New York with his little band of Garus known as the Riddertund.

"Ten votes and twenty offices," has always been the slogan of Mr. Ridder's band and in the majority of cases he never has failed to carry his Bundles klein through according to the motto.

LABOR NEWS

UNION PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

The Boston Central Labor Union took up consideration of altering the charter of this city yesterday at the suggestion of John F. Kennedy, the representative of organized labor on the Finance Commission. It was voted to refer the question to the executive board.

The executive board unanimously offered this suggestion:

"That all changes proposed by the Finance Commission be made public in ample time for a free and full general discussion by the citizens, and that before any are adopted they be submitted to a referendum vote of the citizens."

Miss Josephine Casey, representing in Boston the Woman's Trade Union League, was a guest and spoke of the purposes of her organization, which she said would co-operate in every way with the Central Labor Union.

Resolutions declaring that in the death of Professor Frank Parsons "humanity has lost a friend whom it will be hard to replace," were adopted.

President Patrick Maloney, who declined renomination after having served two terms, was elected delegate to the A. F. of L. convention at Denver next month, and nominations for the semi-annual election of officers on October 15 resulted in the unanimous renomination of Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Cigarmakers' Union, Treasurer Philip H. Sweet of Coopers' Union 86, Assistant Secretary G. Arthur Dandelaide of the Newspaper Writers' Union and Sergeant-at-Arms John J. Fenton of the Coal Teamsters and Handlers' Union 688.

John J. Hynes of the Sheet Metal Workers' Union, vice-president for two terms, was nominated for the presidency, and John T. Cashman of Pulsifers' Union 11 was nominated as an opposing candidate. George F. Tagen of Piano and Furniture Moving Teamsters' Union 343 and Michael A. Murphy of Stablemen's Union 497 were nominated for the vice-presidency.

He is to be treasurer for the Commercial Brewery. Members were invited to be at the South station this evening to greet Eugene V. Debs, who will arrive in his "Red Special."

Boston Bookbinders' Union 16 will hold a mass meeting in Wells Memorial Hall to-morrow evening.

William H. Frazier has been elected delegate to the State Branch, A. F. of L. for the Atlantic Coast Seamen's Union.

The Boston Central Wage Earners' Club has decided to run Martin T. Joyce as a trade union candidate for the Democratic candidate for Alderman in Wards 9 and 10.

SCHOOLBOY FATALLY HURT IN SCRIMMAGE

William Doogue O'Connell, aged seventeen, son of John J. O'Connell, the old-time polo player, is dead at his home, No. 284 Park street, Dorchester, as the result of an injury received in a football scrimmage less than two weeks ago. He was quarterback of the Dorchester High school eleven. For a week he had been confined to his home and physicians decided an operation was necessary. He failed to recover after going under the knife.

Four weeks ago O'Connell was stocked and rubbed at Falmouth. During a fight with his assailants he was kicked in the stomach, and this it is thought weakened him so that when he was hurt in the scrimmage he was too weak to successfully fight the injury. Young O'Connell had been in the high school for three years and was considered one of the strongest candidates for the football team when the boys started the season. He was soon chosen as permanent quarterback.

REMEMBERED BY HIS MANY FRIENDS

Mr. Joseph Goode of the "L" street bath was presented with a gold watch and chain by his many friends yesterday at the bathhouse, in appreciation of his many kindnesses, genial disposition and sterling qualities. The presentation speech was made by ex-Superintendent Charles Cox, in a few well chosen words. "Joe" briefly responded, thanking the donors for the gift.

LONGWORTH TAKEN OFF THE STUMP?

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 5.—President Roosevelt is reported to have ordered his son-in-law, Congressman Nicholas Longworth, off the stump because of his speech at Rock Island, Ill., last Friday, when he said that Roosevelt should be re-elected after Taft serves two terms. Whether ordered to do so or not, Mr. Longworth has temporarily given up the stump.

PHILADELPHIA'S GREAT PAGEANT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—Not since the peace jubilee has Philadelphia witnessed such an imposing array of soldiers as took part in to-day's great military and naval demonstration, the first of the big parades which opened the spectacular events of Founders' Week.

More than 20,000 soldiers and sailors were in line, regular army troops, sailors and marines from the fleet in the harbor and the Philadelphia Navy Yard and State National Guardsmen. Major-General Fred D. Grant was grand marshal.

NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH MUSIC

In all the Catholic churches in the archdiocese of Boston the new regulations governing church music were inaugurated yesterday.

The simplified masses were sung by all the choirs in accordance with the suggestion of Pope Pius X. The music was confined to the Gregorian chant, nor were women's voices eliminated.

The new music sung was that selected by the commission appointed by Archbishop O'Connell and will hereafter be rendered strictly in accordance with the board's instructions.

POLICE HUNT FUGITIVE.

The Boston police are looking for Robert Foss of Topsfield, who is wanted on a charge of breaking and entering. Foss was arrested at Hamilton yesterday, but escaped during the night.

JURY DISAGREES IN LIQUOR CASE

The jury considering the case of James F. Holden, proprietor of the Franklin House at Lowell, and one of the thirty-four hotel men of that city charged with illegal sales of liquor, reported that its members were unable to agree on a verdict in the Middlesex Superior Court at East Cambridge before Judge Lawton today.

Mr. Holden's was the first of the thirty-four cases to be taken up. All of the cases tried at the last term of the court resulted in disagreements.

The prosecutions are really tests of the statute allowing liquor sales on Sundays and holidays if dispensed with "meals."

You Are Mistaken, Madam

If you cling to a milkman's germ-laden milk it is because of mistaken ideas. Perhaps you think that Van Camp's Milk is peculiar. If so, you are wrong. It differs from raw milk only in richness and purity.

You are bound to use Van Camp's Milk before very long.

Your neighbors will tell you its goodness—tell you what delicious milk dishes they make with it.

They will tell you the convenience of a cow in your kitchen—and the economy, too. And you will not be content with impure milk when you have learned those facts.

But you are wrong in waiting.

If you will read these facts—then get one can to prove them—you will use in your home the richest, purest milk in America.

It's Whole Milk

Van Camp's is whole milk—and you never get that from your milkman.

Milk from the top of your milkman's can has an excess of butter fat, for the butter fat rises. Milk from below the top has an excess of solids, for the solids fall. And it lacks the butter fat.

Thus, the milk from your milkman is never twice alike.

Van Camp's is always the same—always the whole, rich milk. All of the butter fat, all of the solids are in it.

That is the reason for the superlative flavor which Van Camp's gives to a milk dish. Not because of anything added. There is no artificial flavor. You simply get the richness that belongs to milk.

Use Van Camp's once in your cooking. Learn the flavor that it gives to a milk dish. Then decide for yourself if you want to go back to raw milk.

Nothing But Milk

Nothing whatever is added—nothing subtracted save water.

Please remember this fact. Van Camp's is not like condensed milk, which is half sugar—a milk that you can't use in cooking.

We take the richest of milk, fresh from the cow, and evaporate part of the water. Then we seal it and sterilize it, so it comes to you just as fresh as it was on the day we milked it.

That is all. We add no sugar, no starch, no preservative. Nothing whatever is altered.

Analysis shows about 30 per cent of solids, of which 8 per cent is butter fat.

A Germless Milk

In five states, every day, we milk 20,000 cows.

Each of these cows is inspected. So are the men who milk them. No tubercular cows—no diseased milkmen—convey their infections to Van Camp's Milk.

Our dairies are sanitary. Cleanliness everywhere is carried to the extreme.

Our buildings, where the milk is evaporated, are built without wood.

Then the milk is sterilized after the can is sealed. This makes it certain that not a germ can exist in it.

Science guards every step.

Not so with your milkman's milk. In every drop there are myriads of germs, and you never know what germs they are.

In Washington, D. C., it was recently found that 11 per cent of the dealers sold tubercular milk—milk with Consumption in it. Milk that caused guinea pigs to die of tuberculosis when they were fed with it.

Yet that is but one of the risks. Is it not folly to take them when they can be wholly avoided?

Six Cents Per Quart

A pint can of Van Camp's costs less than ten cents when you buy the cans by the case.

Put back the two parts water—which we evaporate—and you have our original milk. The cost is about six cents per quart.

Think of that—rich Holstein milk, without a germ of any kind in it, for six cents per quart. And no waste.

Van Camp's is as thick as thick cream. So thick that you add one part water for coffee. Yet it costs half what cream costs.

This richest of milk costs you less than a half milk—less than a milk that's impure. And it can be always on hand.

For Children

Two-thirds the mortality of children is due to the germs in milk.

Van Camp's avoids those dangers.

Raw milk is just as unfit as raw meat. It carries more danger of germ infection. Give your children milk that is safe.

They will like Van Camp's better than raw milk. For that slight almond flavor, due to sterilization, is itself a delicious taste. And the fact that Van Camp's is not germ-laden makes it seem doubly good.

Van Camp's Milk comes in 5 and 10 cent cans—at your grocer's. Try one can and you will want it always. Then it is cheaper to buy by the case—also more convenient.

GAMES TO-DAY.

New York at Boston.

Detroit at Chicago.
Cleveland at St. Louis.

Three more days and the championships of the American and National leagues will be won or lost and the fans can take a breath of relief.

The Sunday games decided something in the National scrap, as Pittsburg has been eliminated by the defeat at the hands of the Cubs and now it is up to the Giants to win three straight games from the Doves to tie the Cubs at the head.

The Giants must take three from the Doves or they are lost.

Should the Giants accomplish the feat and the Chicago, then that protested tie game will have an important bearing on the result, but that will be settled to-day when the Board of Directors meet and take action on President Pulliam's ultimatum of a draw Battle.

It may be the Boston team who will spoil all calculations of the Giants to get the flag, as many believe that the Doves will take one game out of the three with the intense feeling prevailing between the teams over past differences which have arisen.

Detroit still holds to the top place in the American League and has two more games to play with the White Sox. If they lose to-day and Cleveland wins then they will be tied for the lead.

Then if the Naps can win the two other games with the Browns they will beat the Tigers out, as the Tigers will have only one left with the White Sox.

The White Sox have a chance by continuing to beat the Tigers three straight and the Naps drop one to the Browns.

As the Naps and Browns played an eleven-inning tie yesterday they are due for a double-header to-day and the games will seal the Naps' fate.

Big Fortunes at Stake for Magnates and Players; RULES FOR POST-SEASON SERIES

In the world's championship series this month either the New York or Chicago team will represent the National League and either the Tigers, Naps or White Sox the American League, but the club owners of the lucky teams will be practically nothing at all to do with the arrangement for or the handling of the games.

The national commission, made up of Presidents Harry Pulliam and Ban Johnson and of Garry Herrmann, owner of the Cincinnati team and president of the commission, will have absolute control of the series.

New Plan Boosted Receipts.

It was in the Winter of 1904-05, after the failure of the pennant winning teams of the two leagues—the Boston Americans and the New York Giants—to get together that the club owners placed the entire control of future post season series in the hands of the supreme court of baseball, the National Commission.

The results have more than justified this heroic action.

In 1905—under the old plan—the net receipts of the eight post-season games between the Boston Americans and the Pittsburg Pirates were slightly over $50,000.

In 1906—under the National Commission's rule—the five games between the Chicago and Chicago Wheeled $67,359 for the strong boxes.

In 1907 the great receipts of the six games between the Cubs and White Sox were $100,620.

In 1907 the Cubs and Tigers in five games played to $101,778.50.

Players Profit on First Four.

Immediately after the pennant races in the two leagues have closed the national commission promulgates a schedule for the world's series, and the two clubs that are to fight it out for connoth honors rigidly adhere to this and to all other arrangements made by the club owners.

One of the earliest—and wisest—regulations adopted by the commission was that the players should share only in the receipts of the first four games.

As four victories decide the championship, this regulation gives the enemies of the game no chance to talk of inevitably prolonged struggles.

Only five games—one a tie—was played last year—only six in 1906, and only five in 1905.

The division of the gate money is made on this general plan:

Ten per cent of all receipts go to the national commission itself for expenses. Last year this amount was $10,172.

Of the 90 per cent, remaining—in the first four games—the players receive 60 per cent., and the club owners 40 per cent.

After the first four games, the total amount taken in—barring the 10 per cent share of the commission—goes to the owners of the two clubs.

The "club owners' share" is always equally divided, regardless of results.

The "players' share" is divided on the basis of 60 per cent. to the winners and 40 per cent. to the losers.

Prices for Post-Season Games.

There are no "quarter" tickets in games for the world's pennant. The seats and standing room spaces usually sold at 25 cents each, then command 50 cents. The 50-cent pavilion seats sell for $1, the 75-cent grandstand ones for $1.50, the $1 box seats for $2, and the "elevated" or $1.25 box seats for $2.50.

In the last two years the receipts have averaged a little more than $1 for each paid admission, and be it added, there is scarcely any use for a "pass gate" at these games. Last year the $101,778.50 in receipts came from 79,068 people.

In 1905 $1,723 paid admissions were required to bring in the $58,435, while in 1903 only a little over 50,000 net came from 100,429 paid spectators, but that was before prices had been raised.

Bonus Barred by New Rule.

An innovation this year is the rule prohibiting the club owners from adding "bonuses" to the players' regular receipts as provided in the rules.

In 1903 the Pirates, though defeated by the Boston Americans, fared better than did their successful rivals, for Barney Dreyfuss added to their "share" the entire amount coming to the club.

In 1905 the Athletics lost the series to the Giants, but they were given the club owners' share in addition, raising the amount each one of Connie Mack's men received from $382 to $900 and over.

In 1906 Comiskey gave the White Sox $13,000 as a straight one per cent for winning the world's series. Last year President Frank Navin handed the defeated Tigers $15,000, lifting the amount they divided to $30,000.

The Cubs' share of the receipts last year was $54,000. President Murphy added enough to this amount to bring it up to $60,000.

The giving of rewards by the club owners to the players winning the world's pennant will probably not be absolutely prevented by the new regulation of the national commission—as the amounts could be locked on to for the series for next year—but its purpose is obvious. If the owners of one club should promise their team a bonus for winning the world's flag, and the owners of the other club should not, a endless criticism of the game would surely follow, whatever the result.

CRACK MOTORISTS TO RACE ON SATURDAY

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Ralph Depalma, one of the survivors of the death-wrecking endurance run at Brighton Beach, will be in Providence, R. I., next Wednesday with his "Flat Cyclone," preparing for another contest at the Narragansett Park, Providence, on next Saturday. This contest will only be for a five-mile run, but it will be one of the hardest the Brooklyn boy has yet encountered. This time his opponent will be Leo F. N. Baldwin, the Providence driver, who now holds the world's lowest track record for competition racing, made at Readville last September in his "Stanley Racer." Mr. Baldwin has been through many serve wrecking contests in his little "flyer," and is considered one of the nerviest pilots at the wheel in the country to-day. His opponent is another daredevil of equal recklessness, and when they both clash in the seventh event on the programme on next Saturday the automobile enthusiasts of Rhode Island will see a speed contest that will go down the annals of automobile racing in the world.

The Corbin racer, which did such wonderful work at the recent race at Kansas City, Mo., is now in Providence, and Mr. Lee, a Providence driver, who is to pilot this flying racer, is creating no end of excitement when he happens to take a little spin through the busy streets of that city. The machine is nothing more than an ordinary roadster stripped of all equipment. The records made by this machine recently places it in an enviable position in the motor world.

The motorcycle event scheduled to be run off between the automobile heats will be a novel feature, and considering the fact that such riders as Kellogg, Dellcoe and others who have won international fame will participate, it will furnish endless variety and excitement while the automobile heats are being decided upon.

The Committee on Balloons, Parks and Aeronautics of the Aero Club of New England have made test ascensions at Pittsfield, North Adams, Springfield, Fitchburg, Nashua and Lowell for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of gas furnished for ballooning and facilities for making ascensions by its members. The Committee have advised members of the club that the gas furnished at all of the above points is of excellent quality and suitable for balloon ascensions; that the places from which ascensions can be made are desirable in every respect, and that the persons interested have done all in their power to make the flights a success.

The committee have established permanent stations at the following places, Pittsfield, and North Adams for the balloon "New England" capacity 50,000 cubic feet, capable of carrying three persons four hours or two persons seven hours; the balloon "Stanley" at Springfield capable of carrying three persons two hours or one person four hours, capacity 20,000 cubic feet; the balloon "Pittsburg" at Pittsburg capable of carrying two persons two hours or one person four hours, capacity 35,000 cubic feet; the balloon "Boston" at Fitchburg capable of carrying two persons two hours or one person four hours, capacity 20,000 cubic feet. Not including the charge for use of hangar it will cost members to leave the ground in the "New England" $45; in the "Boston" $51.50 and in the "Pittsburg" $18. For short trips the committee recommend the use of the facilities offered at Nashua and Lowell.

After having been associated with George Pierce Company of Buffalo for twelve years and having made a splendid name for himself as a driver in endurance contests Porter E. Dey, generally known as "Teddy" Dey, has resigned his position with that company to enter business for himself. Mr. Dey will from now on deal in Pierce Great Arrow cars in Kansas City, Mo.

Manager Tom Glenn of the Firestone Rubber & Tire Co. is decidedly busy these days getting his new headquarters at 145 Columbus avenue into condition. He found his old quarters in Park Square entirely inadequate to take care of his ever growing business, and when these rooms a vacancy he immediately secured the old salesroom of the Number 45 car, as above address.

Since coming to Boston, Glenn has been particularly active, having pushed the Firestone tire to the front in this section.

BIG CREDIT IS DUE LAJOIE THIS YEAR

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—Whatever the next few days may have in store for the Naps, the fall of the flag in the American League race of 1908 is bound to find the fans of this city, as a whole, much more kindly disposed toward Napoleon Lajoie than they ever before have been at the end of the championship season.

In the old days—with Bay leading off in the batting order and hitting around .350—with Flick, Bradley, Hickman and Larry following, and all batting away above the .300 mark, there seemed something of reason in the remarks heard in every nook and corner of the land: "The Naps would win the flag were they properly handled," and "They are the best team in the league."

But this year, without a man on the team hitting the ball as pennant winners are supposed to hit it, without one Nap regular in the coveted .300 class—and once there were six or seven, no one picked Larry's boys for a very high position in the race.

With Turner and Flick out of the game, and with shifts continually being made in the outfield and infield, no one thought of repeating the old story about the Naps being "the best team in the league," and about their ability to "win the flag were they properly handled."

Indeed, it would have been a most zealous Clevelander who, at many stages of the race this year, would have claimed that the Naps were "the best team in the league."

The Naps' splendid position in the race this year is due in a very large degree to the manner in which Larry and his men have got along together, on and off the field, and to the gritty, determined fight they have made—under their great manager—to overcome obstacles that would have worked disaster on anything but a harmonious team.

TIE WILL DELAY GAMES.

Should the National League race result in a tie next Wednesday and the clubs be ordered to play three games, the chances are that the world's series would not begin before Monday, October 12. This would force the American League champions to lay on their oars for five days, just a shade too long for men to keep on edge for the big event.

AMATEUR BOUTS AT THE ARMORY A. A. THIS WEEK

In the local field of boxing this week the big event will have amateurs as headliners, the Armory Club following out the action of the Boston A. A. in holding events for that class, which means developing timber for future pro ranks.

On Tuesday night the members will gather at the clubhouse to see a list of amateur cards, with some specials of extra merit.

Next week those two wallop eaters, Tommy Quill and Willie Fitzgerald, will appear on the fans.

They met once before at the club, and Fitz was beaten, as he fouled the Brockton boy. He wants to redeem himself in the eyes of the club followers of the game.

Kid Goodman was benefited by beating Fighting Dick Hyland last week at the Armory A. A., as he was immediately signed in New York to fight Bert Keyes, one of the toughest of the lightweights around Gotham, the match to take place Wednesday night, and Manhattan fans can prepare for some live acting when the Kid shows them his return to former fighting shape.

On Friday night in New York the heavyweights will clash. The Hub boy, Fred Bradley, meets Al Kaufman, who has just been signed by Armory A. A.

Mr. Rockefeller Dodges the Issue

Standard Oil's Tyranny Is Too Well Known to Be Smoothed Over with Words

Mr. Rockefeller's autobiography, now being published, is a cunning device in defence of the Standard Oil Trust. It illustrates the character of the man. He discusses his own corporation in connection with corporations generally. He uses the accepted proposition that the corporate form of business is necessary. Thereby he seeks to justify the methods of Standard Oil.

But the public objection to his company did not arise because it was a corporation. It was the METHODS of the company that aroused popular enmity. These tyrannical methods are too well known and too thoroughly authenticated to be smoothed over with cunning words.

That the vast business has been ably conducted no one will deny. But the ruthless crushing of competition by an overwhelming force of capital is inexcusable.

One of the cherished necessities of this country is competition. And Standard Oil has not competed, but crushed. Mr. Rockefeller says that wherever a competitor fully covered his field he was not interfered with by his giant company. That statement is simply a cunning use of words. To be sure, any man, firm or company would cover the field if not attacked by the trust.

The well-known facts are that Standard Oil has not competed, but injured and destroyed honorable opponents. It has assumed the power of mandate that the competitor should sell the business to itself. It demanded that its own price and valuation should be accepted. Otherwise it would destroy the rash competitor.

The warfare urged on the Hisgen Brothers by the monopoly is a matter of national notoriety. And the brave battle of Thomas L. Hisgen for American competition against seemingly overwhelming odds gained for him a popularity which awarded him the Independence party nomination for President of the United States.

No cunning phrases of Mr. Rockefeller can overcome the weight of the evidence and the mass of the common knowledge.

He was indicted long ago by the grand jury of public opinion. In several cases his company was tried and convicted. Mr. Rockefeller has escaped personally.

BUT HE HAS NOT ESCAPED THE SENTENCE OF PUBLIC OPINION.

Keep the Cholera Out!

Strange Burdens in Strange Ships Will Bear a Thorough Overhauling

Cholera is raging in Asia. It is beyond control in St. Petersburg. In Calcutta it daily is destroying hundreds. Manila is infected. Our troops there are dying.

All over this country, in every port and at every shipping place, the medical authorities should begin watching unloading vessels to see that none of our cities may become infected from the deadly germs of cholera.

We have experienced three epidemics in America. The first one came in 1832. It struck the West and the South more terribly than the work of a cyclone. Fort Dearborn—now Chicago—was almost annihilated. In New Orleans six thousand persons perished.

Again, in 1841, the disease came from Germany, by way of New Orleans, and spread up the Mississippi River to Cairo, thence up the Ohio to Louisville and Cincinnati. It was carried over the emigrant route to California.

In 1865 the epidemic arrived in New York by way of Havre. It spread westward to Kansas. In 1873 Tennessee was stricken.

We want no more of these death germs. And one way to keep them at a distance is for our medical officers to look after strange burdens from strange ships.

The Souls of Dumb Brutes

Great Minds in All Ages Have Believed in Their Immortality—More Reason to Treat Them Kindly

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

TWO BROTHERS

TWO of my needy brothers begged for aid;
I gave both shelter, food and words of cheer.
Back to my roof crept one, at dead of night,
And robbed me of the fruits of honest toil.
The other follows when I walk abroad—
Love in his eyes, protection in his mien.
Woe in God's vast Immortal Paradise
Which wins a place—false friend or faithful dog?
Shall Death pay love, and life ingratitude?

A BOOK has been published recently concerning immortality of animals. It is curious to note the shocked expression on the faces of some conventionally orthodox people when the possibility of future life for animals is mentioned, yet there seems to be an abundance of belief that animals do exist after they leave the earth plane.

George Eliot, in "Middlemarch," says: "I like to think that the animals about us have souls something like our own."

Orlando J. Smith, in "Eternalism," says: "The theological theory that animals are soulless is plainly untenable. If man be immortal, all other forms of life must also be immortal."

Socrates admitted the immortality of all animal life.

Solomon says of man and the lower animals: "They have all one breath, so that man has no pre-eminence over beast."

What Did Paul Mean?

St. Paul says in unequivocal terms that the whole creation which now groans in pain shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God. It seems impossible to empty these words of their plain significance.

Canon Wilberforce expressed the opinion that "in the great eternal world men and animals sink or swim together."

Mrs. Mary Somerville says: "I firmly believe that the living principle is never extinguished. I am sincerely happy to find that I am not the only believer in the immortality of animals."

The Rev. J. G. Wood says: "I feel sure that they will have the opportunity of developing their latent faculties in the next world."

Canon Carter declares: "The lower animals are not to be destroyed, but, after their manner, according to their kind, will be restored."

Professor Louis Agassiz said: "In some incomprehensible way, God Almighty has created these beings, and I cannot doubt of their immortality any more than I can doubt of my own."

Each in Its Own Sphere

It is not to be supposed that the animal occupies in the spiritual world a position which places him on an equality with that of the spiritually-developed man, but it can only bring joy to the heart of every right-thinking human being to believe that the poor, misused, neglected and over-taxed dumb creatures of earth have a little chance of something better when they leave their worn-out bodies.

Many of us, I believe, will have reached a point where no wild beast or bird will be kept in cage or pen.

Now that we have turned our backs upon the Summer and are facing another Winter, it would be well for the several animal protective societies to plan their Winter campaigns against cruelty and neglect.

It is only with the educating of cruelty out of the minds of children (for almost all children are by nature thoughtlessly cruel) that we can hope to make any permanent improvement in the conditions existing to-day. I would suggest to these societies that they begin at once to bring about the introduction of the humane education in the schools of all cities, as has been done in Boston and Philadelphia with splendid success and with a notable decrease of cruelty.

New York is always behind all other cities in any great progressive movement, but it is to be hoped that the new animal protective societies will not permit it to be negligent longer in this important matter.

J. L. Burrit, of Missinoming, Pa., sends me a circular letter, saying:

"I visit ninety-eight towns every ten weeks, and New York is the only city in which I see horses drawing street cars. My heart aches every time I see them. I have read in a respectable serial that they are brought fresh from the prairies, and are immediately put to work, and in two years are dead. I would rather throw my money into the Hudson River than invest it in horse car service."

Educate children to think of these things.

The Practical Politician's Complete Letter Writer

By Wex Jones

From a Senator to a Trust Official.

MY DEAR ——: There is a bill pending in the Senate that you might be interested in. It forbids rebates and fixes a heavy fine as the punishment for burning a competitor's plant or having him assassinated.

From a Trust Official to a Senator.

My Dear ——: The bill you mention is so obviously destructive to modern business interests and methods that every consideration demands its immediate ending. We rely upon you as a practical man to see this as we do.

From a Senator to a Trust Official.

My Dear ——: Bill X9876, regarding which we have had some correspondence, has been killed in the committee of which I am chairman.

From a Trust Official to a Senator.

My Dear ——: I am very glad to hear that the pernicious Bill X9876 has been killed.

Enclosed is a cheque for $14,000 on account of counsel fees.

From a Piece of Cheese to the Secretary of a Labor Union.

Dear Sir: It is highly important on your part to write a letter to me, and I reply only to impress upon you the gravity of your offence.

Regarding the suggestion you offer, I can only add that rather than consider any from such a source I would retire from business.

From a Democratic Candidate to a Democratic Treasurer.

My Very Dear ——: Won't you please resign? I am in bad enough myself and any added criticism hurts my feelings terribly.

Of course, after having you made treasurer, I hate to ask you to quit, but you see how it is yourself.

I need not add that when I am elected you can have anything you want. How would Secretary of the Treasury suit you? I think you would make an ideal man for that job.

From a Democratic Treasurer to Anybody.

Undear Sir: He is a contemptible Fourth Ward politician to bring such charges against me. Of course, on the surface, the letters, affidavits and other documents appear to prove the charges, and, as far as that goes, I find myself unable to disprove them, but is that any reason for making them?

They are all four-flushers.

The charges are utterly false—malicious lies—and, moreover, any one in my position would have done the same.

Some Trouble Makers

By Winifred Black

SHE'S gone!

My! my! how good it seems to take a deep breath and say it! Whew! what a relief it is to live in good air again!

I've been poisoned—poisoned for months, and didn't know what was the matter with me.

Poisoned—by a rosy-cheeked, blue-eyed, city maid who looked as if butter wouldn't melt in her mouth.

She did cooking for me; no, she didn't drop arsenic in the soup or put cyanide in the coffee; she just poisoned the air, the very air we breathed, and she did it with an evil mind.

That's all!

The work was too hard, the stairs were too steep, there was too much company, the kitchen was too big, the dining room was too small, there was too much shade from the trees on the lawn, and the birds that built nests in the trees were a nuisance, they woke the cook up so early with their twittering.

Grumble, grumble, grumble, complain, complain, complain, sulk, sulk, sulk; and I've all stood it for nearly three months, like human geese that we were.

Poisoned?

Why, of coufse, you can be poisoned by an ill-natured presence in your house.

I've seen a whole boarding house disrupted by one peevish woman, and I know an office which has been in a state of mild earthquake for weeks, just because there's a mischief-making, malicious, discontented clerk at one of the desks.

I've seen a meddlesome office boy turn a whole force of competent people into a group of discontented, unhappy incompetents, and do it in a few weeks.

Who is it that's making you feel that nothing is right?

Where are you getting the general impression that nobody likes you and that most of your neighbors have a good time laughing at you?

Don't stand it another minute.

Never mind if the person who is poisoning you is competent, clever, agreeable, and good to look at; never mind if she pretends to be your dearest friend —she's poisoning you just the same.

Results talk.

What she says doesn't count so much, it is the way she makes you feel.

If you don't like the way she makes you feel, get away from her, and get away as quickly as you can—it doesn't pay to be poisoned.
